The bet was promptly taken, and at a late hour the beer-carrier scarted out on his task. He progressed as far as Eight East, when he discovered that he was unable to make the distance, having but twenty-five minutes left. It is said that quite a little money changed hands on the result.

Recent experience had taught us that there was no help for us from the north or the south, the east or the west, but only from above. But despite all endeavors, we are still blessed, sometimes he thought more bounteously than we deserved; our crops were full, our flocks have increased and the bright sun still shines upon us. He accounted for our present blessings, not so much from our own worth, bat as a result of the promises made to our fathers for their faithfulness. Let us endeavor to fulfil our parts. These are not the days when we should allow our knees to quake, our hands to fall by our sides, but they are the days when we should do the will of the Lord, and let our actions speak to our enemies. Let us make this a land of Zion unto our selves; we came here, we displaced no one, and let us show our enemies that we intend to remain here, and to maintain our rights. The times are perilous at present, and every man should have a present testimony of the truth, not being content with that he may have had at a former day.
